When Visual Communicator starts you will see a contact list. To start communicating with someone in your contact list you scroll to that person and then press the actionbutton or select “Invite to chat” in the menu.

Receiving a VC Call

When someone wants to chat with you Visual Communicator will automatically start and play a ringtone. You get the choice if you want to accept the chat. To accept the chatrequest press the “Yes” button.

Navigating

When both you and your chatfriend are connected the chatview will be displayed. You can navigate between the picture- and chatviews by pressing the left- and right arrowbuttons.

Push to talk

Push to talk works both in chat- and picturereview. Using it is really easy. You just have to press and hold the green phonebutton, say your message and release the button. Your message will then be sent to your chatfriend and played automatically. The maximum length of your recording is 10 seconds.

Chatview

To chat with your friend you just have to type the text you want to send and then press the actionbutton or select “Say” in the menu.

Picturereview

Here you can take pictures with your phones built in camera and send them them the person you are chatting with. When you receive a picture the application will automatically switch to picturereview and display the received picture. The picturereview has two modes, viewfinder- and picturemode.

If you are in viewfinder mode the screen will display what the camera currently is seeing, in realtime. You can take a picture by pressing the actionbutton or selecting “Take Picture” in the menu.

In picture mode the screen will display the picture you have taken with the camera or a picture sent to you by your chatfriend. You start the viewfinder by pressing the actionbutton or selecting “Start Viewfinder” in the menu.

When you want to send a picture to your chatfriend you select “Send Picture” from the menu. Visual Communicator will then send the picture that is displayed on the screen to your chatfriend.

Settings

The settings dialog can be accessed from the contactlist view. Not while you are chatting. You go to the settings by selecting “Settings” from the menu.

There are two items in the settings dialog, username and server.

The username is the name is used in the chatview, and is also displayed to your friend when you start a VC Call. The server item should not normally be edited.
